THE WINNER—Sierra Madre's labor of love rolls down Colorado Blvd. shortly after passing the reviewing stand in the Rose Parade. Winner of the Theme Prize, one of the parade's top awards, the local float cost less than $1,500 to construct, primarily because of the large number of volunteers who helped make it a success. Booklets showing the local float in color may be purchased at The Sierra Madre News.

'57 Fire
Loss Only
$672.00

Property losses caused by fire in Sierra Madre last year amounted to only $672, Fire Chief James Heasley announced in his annual report to the City of Sierra Madre.

The fires that caused the most damage occurred last February, resulting in a loss of $270, and in December, $287. Chief Heasley noted that the February fire probably would have been avoided had $40 been spent repairing a defective attic heater.

The Volunteer Fire Department received only 21 calls during the year, and two of those were false alarms.

Approximately 90 per cent of the firemen responded to calls during the year, and bi-monthly fire drills and meetings have been well attended.

"We are fortunate," Chief Heasley said, "that the men are permitted to leave their jobs when the fire alarm sounds."

The Fire Department's Christmas activities, the chief noted, were successful and the funds raised will permit the department to continue its scheduled program for this year.

Chief Heasley suggested that the Alta Vista Fire Station be remodeled for use as a permanent Fire Department fixture.

Dewey Display
In Woman's Club

Paintings by Alfred James Dewey, dean of Sierra Madre artists, will be on display in the auditorium of the Woman's Clubhouse during January.

Six large landscapes in oil and a seventh painting of a Franciscan padre, are included. Mr. Dewey has lived, taught and exhibited in Sierra Madre for 30 years.

Total Cost of Entry
Less Than $1500

Sierra Madre is glowing in congratulations this week, one of the smallest cities participating in the 69th annual Tournament of Roses, in Pasadena, but capturing one of the three top prizes.

"Young America Dreams" was judged to be the best float typifying the theme, "Day Dreams in Flowers," and was awarded the Theme Prize.

Although repeatedly winning class prizes in its division, this is the first time one of the top prizes has been given to Sierra Madre.

Every resident in the city participated. Col. Walter Thurber, general chairman of the float committee, pointed out.

City funds to the extent of $1,000 were allocated for construction.

Approximately 350 persons responded to the call for volunteers to paste flowers. Mrs. Richard Barden, president of the Civic Club said. Of these, 200 were school age.

The schedule was arranged by the Civic Club, an organization in the middle of the project from start to finish, and first to indicate its support of a float to the City Council, by spokeswoman Mrs. Gordon MacDonald and Mrs. Barden.

Teenagers, headed by Mrs. Claude Brown, were responsible for raising $340, with the winning team receiving its reward at a luncheon hosted by the Kiwanis Club.

Persons who purchased roses were active participants. Col. Thurber pointed out, as were contributing groups, including the Woman's Club, American Legion Auxiliary, PTA, Lady Oski's Nursery, Roberts' Market, and the Wistaria Bakery.

Actively engaged in construction of the float from the first board to the last flower, were Larry Bevington, Manuel de la Torre, Robert Green, and their work crew. Well over 250 hours were put in at hard labor by the construction crew of 12 men, Green reported.

Cost of the material and flowers was about $1,200, Bevington said, with final accounting still to be made. Funds reached close to $1,700. The balance will be turned over to a future committee, by the outgoing group, possibly for a 1959 entry.

In a report to the City Council, the chairman said: "There is not space to list all of those who worked for Sierra Madre with an amazing capacity for hard work and a spirit of self-sacrifice which rates more than a word of appreciation from all of us."

Net income declined to $5,200.016 as against $5,478,261 in 1956. This is equal to $2.35 a share, compared with $2.49 a year earlier.

Deposits increased in 1957 to $897,474,657. Deposits in 1956 amounted to $828,328,512. The bank's undivided profits increased from $7,784,168 to $9,169,223.

A new record in savings and loan history was registered by Home Savings and Loan Association recently as resources climbed past the half-billion-dollar barrier.

Vaccine Success Closes Hospital

The Sister Kenny Hospital in El Monte was closed Monday, primarily because of the success of the Salk vaccine and the dwindling number of polio patients who need care.

The announcement was made by Judge George A. Dockweiler, president of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation of Southern California, Inc.

Although the institution did expand its services to care for other types of neuromuscular diseases, the limited use of the hospital in the rehabilitation field and the difficulty of raising sufficient funds to provide this expensive type of care, made it necessary to discontinue operations.

The Foundation, chartered in 1948, operated for the first two years as an out-patient clinic from an office in Los Angeles.

In 1950, the Southern California Protective Society, which owns the hospital at 4039 N. Gilman Road, El Monte, made the hospital available to the Sister Kenny Foundation at a nominal rental. The hospital opened with 29 beds and reached a final maximum of 116.

In its eight years of operation, the hospital has cared for approximately 1,400 people as bed patients and many hundreds of others in the out-patient clinics.

This work has been accomplished with the support of many organizations and a host of individuals. These include AID, Permanent Charities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, RTRA, California Community Foundation, United Funds of Alhambra, El Monte, Pomona Valley, San Marino, West Covina, Covina area, Lynwood, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, a large number of in-plant organizations, labor unions, and hundreds of associations and individuals throughout Southern California.

Speaking for the Board of Directors, Judge Dockweiler expressed his sincere thanks to those who helped carry on this work during the time it was so drastically needed.

Ida Obst, formerly of 502½ W. Highland Ave., died in the Sierra Madre Hospital, Jan. 6 following a lengthy illness.

A native of Shonwald, Germany, she came to this country in 1909 and has been a resident of Sierra Madre for 32 years. Survivors include a brother-in-law, H. P. Obst of San Bernardino and other nieces and nephews here and in Germany.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Ripple mortuary chapel with Rev. Armin W. Hess, of the First Lutheran Church officiating. Committal private in the Pasadena Mausoleum.

James Wolfe
Installed as Kiwanis Head

Under a banner bearing the words, "Activate in '58," James H. Wolfe, Sierra Madre merchant, was installed as president of the Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club Tuesday by R. W. Straub, Monrovia Kiwanian, lieutenant governor of the 15th Kiwanis District.

Other officers installed are Dr. Milton W. Valois, vice president; Henry A. Nelson, treasurer, and Roy H. Pickett, secretary.

Past president Larry C. Lomax, was relieved from office by past lieutenant governor, Al Holmer, of Ontario.

Newly elected directors of the local Kiwanis Club are Lawrence C. Bevington, Dr. Lowell D. Jackson, Walter A. Fader, and John H. Curtis.

Visiting Kiwanians who attended the installation were George F. Nugent, member of the Monrovia Club, secretary of the 15th District and a former Kiwanis governor from New York; Joe W. Brehm, of Regina, Saskatchewan, and Dr. Ed. Hays Jr., of Monrovia.

Yule Business
Good, Says Local Chamber Official

Christmas business in Sierra Madre held up well this season and in a few cases surpassed 1956, Anthony Cavalli, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, reported to city merchants.

Christmas shopping, however, was spotty in many instances until a few days before the holiday when business picked up considerably.

On the whole, though, Sierra Madre held its own in a period when business throughout the United States suffered a decline.

Partially responsible for Sierra Madre's comparatively bright prospects is the traffic congestion in large shopping areas, Mr. Cavalli said, and the ease with which customers can park their cars here in the three new city lots and in several private parking lots.

Hiestand

William C. (Bill) Stethem, 15501 Mayall St., Democratic nominee for Congress, 21st district, in the 1956 elections, yesterday formally announced his candidacy for the same office in the 1958 campaign.

"Having been endorsed in the last campaign by all factions of the Democratic Party and every labor group, as well as many other groups, including the Institute of Social Welfare, I am certain of their support in the forthcoming campaign," stated Stethem.

"I shall wage a hard hitting campaign and hope to win over my Republican opponent, regardless of the 'check book' bosses who will undoubtedly support the Republican candidate again."

The Stethems have resided in the San Fernando area for the past eight years and have been active in civic and community affairs.

LAST RESTING PLACE of two of an estimated 1,000 shopping carts that disappear each week from super markets is the ravine bottom shown here. Food store special agents representing markets in four Southern California counties say their 1,000-a-week area estimate is "probably too conservative." They theorize that the forlorn pair of carts above were abandoned by customers and later shoved into the ravine by vandals.

It isn't so much what a man attempts, but what he finishes that really counts.

The Customer Pays . . .

Shopping Cart Thefts Cost More Than Bad Checks

Shopping carts, disappearing at a rate of more than 1,000 each week, last year cost food market owners $1,671,750 in four Southern California counties, an industry spokesman said yesterday.

"In many cases, cart losses cost more than bad checks, burglaries and robberies combined," he added.

A survey covering 534 markets in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino shows losses of 22,290 carts last year. Since these stores account for 40 per cent of food sales in the area, total losses are estimated at $5,725.

GROCERS SAY most of the carts are pushed away by customers who underestimate the cost of the carts and overestimate the merchant's profit on their business.

"These baskets cost us $32 each; that's equal to our net profit on the food for two large families for a year," claimed one official.

"Cart-napping is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment," he continued, "but we don't want to jail our customers. We'd rather appeal to their sense of honesty and fair play.

"What's more, every one of our customers helps pay for the loss in higher prices. I would cut prices tomorrow on dozens of items if I could be sure no more of my carts would get 'lost'."

Where do the carts go? Agents for the California Food and Drug Association, who act as store detectives for their various companies, report:

"Some are picked up off the street and 'fenced' to unwary or unethical merchants. Some hold junk in garages.

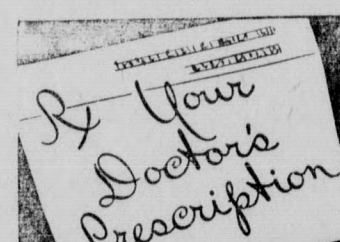

"Some are used as laundry carts until they rust up a batch of clothes and then wind up in the trash. Some are torn apart by the kids. Even the carts that come back are costly as they are often damaged. And, for every cart that's in somebody's backyard, the store has to buy an extra one to keep in the store."

SOME CALIFORNIA cities have passed special ordinances to control what one citizen called "the public nuisance, the traffic hazard, the disgrace to the moral character of our city that abandoned shopping carts represent."

Market officials emphasized that customers pay for the lost carts.

"You've heard of passing the savings on to the customer—we'll, we are passing the losses on, too!" cracked one.

Special agents say the name of the owner is stamped in the metal frame of the carts, and declared that "anyone who spots an abandoned cart and notifies the owner is doing a real public service."

VILLA
VIEWSBy Toni Maurin
Sycamore 7-9634

Is there a woman alive that some time or another hasn't complained violently about the deadly monotony of the every day routine of life?

I would be the first to admit that I have often indulged in just such a pastime, and been convinced that just everyone must be doing more interesting things than I.

However, I guess my age is beginning to show, because at long last I am also willing to confess that while diversion from routine is wonderful up to a point, I am quite content now that the bills are paid and the last of the holidays are packed away for another 11 months, to settle down like a mother bear and hibernate for awhile. Cinderella has slowly but surely turned back to the hearth!

I HAVE had several queries as to the full meaning of the "Oh John" sign which has illuminated the side of the hill of Mesita Road.

This is one of two signs, the other being on top of the hill and hidden from the public eye. The signs started out in 1956 as a plaudit to John Davidson who was president of the Tournament of Roses with a "Well Done John" sign. The sign naturally had to continue in 1957 because Davidson's neighbor, John Biggar, was the 1957 president. The last "Marsha" sign came strictly as a joke and merely to whet people's curiosity which, may I add, has done just that.

SPEAKING of Mesita Road, Harold Zook's mother, Mrs. Phil S. Dickinson, came out from River Bend Farm in St. Charles, Ill., to spend the holidays with them.

DR. AND MRS. J. Arthur Reed of 333 Calvert Road returned last week from a trip to Davis Dam on the Colorado River. They took their three children, Jimmy, Joe and Linda. They have a trailer in a park up there so they run into no lodging problems and are able to move about freely, camping and enjoying the countryside to the full measure.

THE PAUL WETCHER family of 1805 Kinneloa Mesa also returned this last week from a trip up to their cabin in Wrightwood. They found no snow so they spent their time going on desert trips which included a side trip to the Opal Mountains and to the Fossil Beds where they collected a great quantity of ornamental rock for their yard here on the Mesa.

DR. AND MRS. Cleo Dorsey of 3390 Fairpoint had serious cause for alarm as the New Year came to be. They had left their son, Steve, home in the care of Dee Edmeades for the evening and told them they could go outside at the stroke of 12 to bang a pan or two.

They did just that, when suddenly Dee felt a pain in his shoulder. He called the Dorseys home and they discovered that Dee had been grazed by a bullet from a .32 caliber gun which had apparently been shot from south of Fairpoint, according to police.

Fortunately, the boy was only slightly injured, but it is obvious that someone on this hill should be disarmed before serious injury is inflicted on an innocent bystander!

MRS. ARTURO Gutierrez of 3265 Fairpoint had a dinner party last Saturday night to honor her husband's birthday. Among the guests were Messrs. and Mesdames George Clark, Richard Penner, Ralph Paquette, George Amthor, William Friedrich, Ernest Maurin, Richard Penner, Ben Rogers, Harold A. Levenson, Michael MacLane, Fred Ascencio, William Reed, Emerson S. Reichard and Mr. Charles Noonan.

Hi, everyone. Today marked the primary elections for student body offices. A week from today the nominating assembly will be held. All nervous candidates will make their speeches in hopes of winning votes. Then they will spend a sleepless night tossing and turning, wondering what to do tomorrow will bring—for half there will be great happiness. That Friday, during the third period, votes will be cast and counted. By the sixth period all will know.

FRIDAY'S ASSEMBLY was held to present letters to the boys on the football team who earned them. After the letters were given out, Mr. Hayworth, former principal of Field School and presently director of physical education in Pasadena, spoke on what makes a good athlete.

LAST WEEK, Jon Provost, the boy who plays on the TV program "Lassie," was guest at the Dunns' residence on Shadow Grove Rd. They are in charge of taking care of the person who rides on the Lakewood float each year. Last year Pat McCormick stayed at their home.

Basketball, Once Simple
Game, Keeps Modern Pace

By Charles Ayres

Back about 10 years ago when I was a mere boy, there was a game we all liked to play to pass away the cold winter months when our mother's couldn't stand us inside the house anymore.

It was claimed that the game was invented out of desperation by a Boy Scout or youth leader who was similarly trapped during a blizzard with a group of spirited young boys. His salvation was to kick the bottom out of an apple basket and con the kids into trying to throw a ball through it.

Lo and behold, from this simple but ingenious beginning was born the game called basketball.

QUITE NATURALLY, considering the number of such maligned mothers, the simplicity of the game, the availability of an empty barn, and the long periods of unlivable weather in the rest of the United States and Texas during most of the year, the game became an overnight sensation.

So important did it become that in most of the states in the blizzard belt, the three R's were replaced with a BRRR during the winter months in academic circles. The euphonious sounds of the howling winds and pouring rains were blotted out by the shrill scream of a dried pea being buffeted within the unrelenting confines of a tin mouthpiece, and the thump, thump, thump of a round inflated ball being bounced on a wooden floor.

In the beginning the game was quite simple, and the admitted purpose was to see which group of five could throw the ball through the other group's basket or goal the most times during a given period. It was so simple, in fact, that even those who were not playing could follow the progress of the ball.

LIKE SO many things, however, the game has been caught in the breakneck rush of modern living. This has resulted in a mad race for excellence that has loused up its whole character.

In order to excel today it has become necessary to (a) practice throughout the year during all waking hours even to the exclusion of girls, (b) promote a thyroid condition to assure a height of 7 feet or more, and (c) rush up and down the floor at speeds that Casey Jones never dreamed of.

This has resulted in (a) a singular lack of spectator interest (for after all who can work up much enthusiasm for a blurr?), (b) a surge in IBM stock in an-

Seven New Roses May Win Great Popularity

America's favorite flower is the rose and California's favorite rose is the hybrid tea. Beauty and glamour of flower with sturdiness and adaptability of plant are the qualities which win America's plaudits for the rose. The hybrid tea class has achieved its status with exciting color, recurrent bloom and excellent bud, flower form and size.

Each year commercial rose growers develop hybrid tea varieties in new hues and sizes. Just a few of the best of these developments are made available to home gardeners. The California Association of Nurserymen predicts that at least seven of this year's introductions will be great favorites with California home gardeners for years to come.

These include an All-America award winner, White Knight, and four other stunning varieties: Sterling Silver, Twilight, Aztec and Isobel Harkness. Look for them at your local nursery now during the current bare root planting season.

THE IMMACULATE color which gives White Knight its name is only one of its attractions. Long pointed buds and beautiful double blooms are borne in quantity on this good looking, upright medium-sized shrub. The All-America award won by this new variety indicates that it could become a great favorite throughout the country since it has survived rigorous tests in growing areas all over the United States, including several in California.

Another recent accomplishment in the steadily expanding field of white roses (previously plagued with difficulties) is Virgo, an excellent cut rose in snowy, clear white. Perfectly shaped, tapering buds add to Virgo's distinction.

Another color which has made big news in the rose world in recent years is lavender. Two new varieties this year are in shades of this astonishing rose color. Sterling silver, a medium-sized free-bloomer, has large silver-lavender blooms. Twilight, a low growing, bushy plant, has pastel lavender-lilac flowers with silvery reverse petals.

Also being proudly introduced to California gardeners this year is the clear, shining yellow Isobel Harkness with its large many-petaled blooms. A free-blooming, robust plant, Isobel Harkness was developed in England.

NEW TAX HIGH
 State, local and federal tax collections in California rose nearly a billion dollars over last year's figure to reach an all-time high of $10,028,163,650 for the fiscal year, 1956-57, according to a report from the California State Chamber of Commerce Tax Department.

Low Blood Pressure Is Seldom Dangerous

(Presented as a public service by the Foothill District of the Los Angeles County Medical Association)

QUESTION—Why is low blood pressure seldom discussed. Isn't it dangerous?—I. T.

ANSWER—Low blood pressure in itself seldom is dangerous. Most people with it can be happy they have it. There are certain diseases, such as Addison's disease, in which low blood pressure is one of the symptoms, but they are comparatively rare. One of the mechanical causes of low blood pressure nerves which supply the is a slower-than-normal reaction of the blood vessels to changes in demands of the body. Blood vessels constrict or expand in response to varying needs of exercise or sudden movement in order to compensate for shifts in volume.

Persons with low blood pressure may find a dizziness or fainting spell occurring when they rise suddenly from a reclining position. This is due to the fact that blood vessels do not act quickly and smoothly enough to overcome the effect of gravity and there is a momentary decrease of blood to the brain.

Q—Is it true that half of all cases of blindness could have been prevented if caught early enough?—P. L.

A—Yes. There are over 800,000 cases of blindness in this country caused by glaucoma. Early diagnosis of this condition—which is an increased pressure within the eyeball—generally would have permitted medical or surgical treatment or both in time to save the eye-sight.

Q—What precautions are taken to prevent sponges

A—A careful count is made at least twice before and again following surgery to make sure all instruments, sponges and other materials are accounted for. Should a sponge be missing in the final count, an X-ray can be taken which will reveal its presence inside the patient—sponges (actually pads of gauze) nowadays being prepared with X-ray-opaque markers in them.

Q—How dangerous is an operation for removal of the prostate gland?—B. W.

A—Nowadays with modern surgical techniques and increased skills, the prostatectomy is as safe as any other major operation and is safer than many of them.

Q—Is there anything that can be injected into an enlarged prostate to reduce it?—T. C.

A—At the present time there is no good evidence to indicate that anything injected into the prostate shrinks it, or otherwise reduces its size. Many of the substances that have been used are extremely dangerous both to the prostate and to the health of the patient.

Camp Fire Girls Begin Their Peanut Sale Jan. 17

Pasadena and Sierra Madre will once again go on a peanut-eating binge as Camp Fire Girls and their small sister Blue Birds canvass the area door-to-door during their annual peanut sale Jan. 17 through Feb. 3.

Last year the girls sold enough peanuts to put a heater in their swimming pool at their summer camp, Wasegaw, in the San Bernardino Mountains, and this year they hope to earn enough to enlarge the water system there and put a heating unit in Gifford Lodge at their town camp, Chitiqua, located at the top of Fair Oaks Avenue.

The peanuts are vacuum packed in cans, and they sell for 50 cents a can or "two cans for $1," as the young salesgirls will tell the householders.

The peanut sale is the single money-making project of the Camp Fire Girls of the San Gabriel Valley Council. The council includes, in addition to Sierra Madre and Pasadena, Altadena, Duarte, La Canada, Monrovia, San Gabriel, San Marino, South Pasadena and Temple City. Other councils have other benefit plans for their own areas.

Girls who participate in the sale will be treated to a special movie, and those selling their suggested quota of 35 cans will receive a certificate of merit. The girls are instructed to be "courteous and neat," wear their red, white and blue service costumes and remember to say, "Thank you."

They are working on a sales pitch that will be hard to resist, and must keep track of their own sales and records. They are warned not to enter any homes, but to sell from the front porch and during the daylight hours.

In addition to earning funds for their camps, the girls' individual groups receive 50 cents per case for their own projects.

Mrs. William Kindrick, 390 E. Laurel, is chairman of the sale for the Sierra-Hastings Camp Fire district, and she is being assisted in Hastings Ranch by Mrs. George Vane, 1315 Tropical. Sierra-Hastings has 22 Camp Fire and Blue Bird groups.

EXTEND SPECIAL FLAVOR OF WILD RICE

Wild rice is a fancy fare. And, because it is rather scarce and somewhat expensive, it is often combined with other foods to extend its very special flavor.

You may enjoy wild rice in combination with bread for a truly savory stuffing for turkey. Or make a splendid casserole of wild rice to serve as the "hot dish" for a fine buffet supper of cold turkey, ham, salads and relishes.

STEED WILD RICE IN PREPARATION FOR USE

Place wild rice in colander and wash thoroughly with cold water. Drain and put in pan for a deep enough for water to extend at least one inch over rice. Cover with boiling water. Let stand until water cools, drain and again cover with boiling water and let it cool. Repeat this procedure three times, adding one teaspoon salt for each four ounces of raw rice to the last boiling water. Your wild rice is now ready for use in all recipes.

WILD RICE STUFFING (for 14 to 16 lb. turkey)

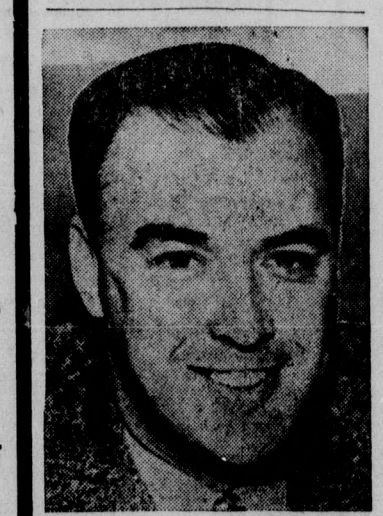

- 1 C. butter
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 C. carrots, finely diced
- 2 C. thinly sliced celery
- 1/2 C. minced parsley
- 2 to 2 1/2 qts. fluffy bread crumbs
- 1 Tbsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 tsp. powdered sage
- 1/2 tsp. thyme
- 1/2 tsp. marjoram
- 1/2 lb. wild rice, steeped
- About 1 C. broth from giblets

Melt butter over medium flame. Add vegetables and saute until onion is golden. Toss bread crumbs and seasonings to mix well. Mix in vegetables and steeped wild rice. Taste and add more seasonings if desired. Add just enough broth to moisten mixture lightly.

WILD RICE CASSEROLE (12 to 15 generous servings)

- 1/2 lb. wild rice, steeped
- 1 lb. pork sausage
- 1 lb. mushrooms, sliced
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 4 Tbsp. flour
- 1/2 C. cream
- 2 1/2 C. chicken broth or bouillon
- 1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate
- 1/4 tsp. oregano
- 1/4 tsp. thyme
- 1/4 tsp. marjoram
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 C. slivered almonds

Steep rice. Put sausage into a skillet, break up with a fork and fry until lightly browned. Drain off excess fat. Add mushrooms and onions and saute until onions are slightly yellow. Mix in flour. Stir in cream and broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add monosodium glutamate and seasonings. Mix with rice and slivered almonds. Put into an oiled casserole. Bake at 350° about 30 minutes.

Kids Busy During Yule Vacation—Working, Yet

By Judy Haymaker

Christmas vacation? Ha!

To catch up on the doings of everyone during the holidays would be impossible. Yet in doing frantic last minute shopping, and so forth, I observed quite a few ambitious souls working in various places.

Sue Maloney and Bill Harris at Arnold's Hardware and Diane Tweedel at Carroll's; Donna Mihalic, Phronsie Thompson, Sanya Lindquist and Karen Morris at Reese's; Ray Jusches for La Lone's Cleaners. The list is longer, of course.

CONGRATULATIONS are in order to Bob Fend, who hooked the lady of his choice, Pat Stetson—or was that vice-versa? Anyway, if you notice a couple floating down the streets oblivious to all, that's Sierra Madre's newest engaged pair.

THIS YEAR all of Sierra Madre is proud and happy because of our award winning float. A good many of you put in time so we could capture the best theme award—this is the success of a co-operating community with spirit. Thank you. And let's do at least as well next year!

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new Pasadena High School were held yesterday with every student who possibly could, and parents to boot, attending, dressed in traditional red and white. Finally, finally, we're under way! Now we will have a closer, larger, less crowded, and, eventually, better equipped high school.

JAN. 10 at 7 p.m. the PHS Bulldogs meet Glendale High School for a home basketball bout. Sierra Madre students should be unusually interested, as the varsity sports local, Tom Thayer, stars at center-forward. A senior, Tom hails from Illinois, and is a cousin of Penn Thayer, '56 graduate of PHS and life-time resident of Sierra Madre. Tom has been scoring an excellent average of 20 points a game.

Salute to The Monitor

Our congratulations to The Christian Science Monitor, one of the world's finest newspapers, which will celebrate its 50th anniversary this year.

The first issue of The Monitor rolled off the press on Nov. 25, 1908, just three and one-half months after its founder, Mary Baker Eddy, told the Christian Science Board of Trustees:

"It is my request that you start a daily newspaper: at once and call it The Christian Science Monitor. Let there be no delay . . ."

THE POLICY of the paper—"to injure no man, but to bless all mankind"—has been adhered to steadfastly for the past 50 years.

The Monitor has grown during its first 50 years into a newspaper recognized for its integrity on the local, national and international scene. It has received 89 major awards, including eight official honors from foreign countries.

Its staff of writers, including foreign correspondents, is among the best in the business. The Monitor is not narrow or opinionated. It prints anything that is of public importance or that affects the public welfare.

ITS REPORTERS are told to write stories that are not only factually accurate but also significant in their interpretation, that instill an interest in the things that make for human betterment. Transient incidents that turn into ashes the next day occupy little space in Monitor columns.

The duties of a newspaper, in the opinion of Monitor Editor Erwin D. Canham, are: to inform, to explain, to awaken, to enlighten, and to entertain.

Many newspapers fulfill one or more of these requisites, but only a handful live up to all five of them every day in every edition, as does The Christian Science Monitor.—H.W.E.

THIRD PARTY?

Dear Sir:

I yawned when I read the comment of Robert G. Spivack in your "Watch On the Potomac" column of Jan. 2, 1958, that "light money, business favoritism, and the 'junior recession' were topics to be abandoned by our Dixie Democrat House leadership in favor of foreign policy, Soviet science, and the decline of our military prestige."

It was encouraging to read later on that your correspondent had anticipated this yawn when he wrote "there are many responsible observers who believe the first order of business for regular Democrats should be to seek the ouster of present party leadership in Congress. After that's done a party which has some meaning in social terms can be defined. Until then, Democrats need not be surprised if cries of outrage are met with wide yawns."

My thinking is this. A real Democrat would not separate domestic from foreign affairs in considering the general well-being of all our people. They are inseparable. Foreign affairs affect our domestic life, and vice versa. Present-day Democrats (a la those in "Dixie") who try to make a separation are just as vulnerable to justified criticism as once were the "isolationist Republicans" who served as one of the many stepping-stones to the political power now enjoyed by the Democratic Party.

The whole picture points up to me a situation which, for the general well-being of all of us, leaves the door wide open for another political party—since both the Republicans and Democrats treat foreign and domestic affairs separately—to step in and eventually assume control of our national government.

If this situation is not recognized and acted upon by either of our present parties, we'll find that that other political party may turn out to be a Labor Party, since Walter Reuther seems to be the only individual of national stature today who is proceeding along these lines. Perhaps that is why Republican Rep. Hiestand the other day, here in Sierra Madre, characterized Mr. Reuther as the "most dangerous man in America." Dangerous to whom???

(NAME WITHHELD ON REQUEST)

BUSHEL OF SALT

Dear Sir:

President Reuther (Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers and vice president of the AFL-CIO) has seen the clipping from the Sierra Madre News (Dec. 5, 1958).

Congressman Hiestand is one of those extreme right wing radicals whose comments should be taken with a bushel of salt. He and his ideological cousins, Senators Goldwater, Mundt and Curtis, have been spouting this same balderdash for some time, insisting that the poor, "enslaved" American worker needs liberation from the "union bosses" and "union dictators." They would liberate workers back into the 1920's, of course, when they had no voice in the setting of hours, wages and working conditions.

The most hopeful thing about cavemen of the Hiestand type is that they represent only a tiny minority of the American public and are paid little or no heed by thinking citizens.

Yours truly,

JOE WALSH,
Assistant Director
Public Relations, UAW

Saturday in Suburbia

Lee Shippey asks
What Do You Think?

This is what happened to one fellow you may know during the happy holidays: The weekend before Christmas he attended a party for an old school friend. The refreshments were very different from those which usually sustained him, but what the heck? It was the joyous season and he could relax a little.

Then on Tuesday there was an office party. Having relaxed on Saturday and having lived through it with no signs of damage, he decided he was still one of the boys and could do it again. Christmas came and he decided not to be a wet blanket. He would forget diet and certain resolutions until New Year's. He stuffed himself with more food than he could have swallowed without the aid of a good deal of liquid.

HE HAD BEEN remembered by many persons to whom he had sent no greeting, so he went to call on several of them—and in every case was offered Christmas cheer.

By New Year's it dawned on him that he was no longer one of the boys. He could not take the late hours and gay parties as he thought he could in the happy days of youthful fun, now remembered through the magnifying glasses of memory. But he didn't admit that even to himself. He merely knew he was feeling dogged and he had accepted one more invitation and thought he could stagger through it. He went to the party but all he ate was one olive. However, it was all he could do to get home.

His wife called the doctor, who shook his head gloomily and demanded: "What on earth have you been eating and drinking?" "Oh, nothing much, Doc," gasped the patient. "But I really got sick just after I ate a ripe olive. It must have been that."

NO, THE ABOVE is not autobiographical, merely biographical. But there ought to be a law to prevent anyone from attending more than three holiday week parties in two days. As it is now, too many hosts and hostesses wear themselves out, and break the bank account, to entertain persons who are already tired of being entertained and yearn for nothing but their beds.

Yet we shall remember the holidays just past all the rest of our days. It was the first time in 12 years that all living members of our clan got together.

John and Pat flew out from Miami, bringing their two children whom we had never seen, and one was baptised while here. Frank and family drove down from Sierra Madre, Chuck and family live in San Diego as do the Bob Thomases.

Sunday we all had dinner with Bob and Sylvia, with my sister Louise, who is 86, and Melanie Elizabeth, who is four months old, as guests of honor, all of our grandchildren and five in-laws were proud to claim as ours. It was a great day.

Around the Square

By Tommy Ann Miller

Word arrived that Suzanne Hanson is coming home—the long way round—after two years' foreign duty with the United States Information Service in Amman, Jordan. Enroute, she'll stop in Ceylon to see her sister and husband, Sierra Madreans, Paul and Jean Johnson. Then she'll go on to visit her Army colonel brother in Formosa.

Suzanne plans to spend some time with friends here (she lived several years with the Johnsons at their Skyland Dr. home), before going on to Washington, D.C. for further assignment.

A SPY in the camp of Oleta de Campo reports she's wistfully studying City of Paris maps, boning up on her French and pricing fares to Europe.

Fashion Future's future fashions—Parisian, maybe?

ONE MALE sports car driver in a snappy little white convertible was seen heading west on Highland wearing a conventional red sports car cap on top of a daffodilly scraggly mop of red yarn "hair."

HOMEY TOUCH: The era of the memo has evolved to a "folksy" point. Instead of flooding empty autos with formal printed offers (i.e., "Your 1911 Stutz Bearcat is worth $1,595 on a new Essex"), some car dealers are now leaving handwritten bids—mimeographed on scraps of genuine simulated lunch sack, yet!

ATTENTION, art film addicts. Requests for foreign and art movies are welcomed under the new policy at

"GOLLY, DAD, HOW CAN I EVER LEARN TO COOK IF EVEN YOUR FAVORITE DISHES DON'T TEMPT YOU?"

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Indicative of what will probably be the tone of the new session of Congress are the hearings being held by House Anti Trust subcommittee chairmaned by Rep. Emanuel Celler of N.Y.

The chief concern of these hearings is to probe deeply the current practice of the Justice Dept. in anti trust cases to accept consent decrees consent decrees in 22 out of 27 civil cases. This is the way a consent decree works. Justice Dept. agrees to drop prosecution against alleged monopolist in return for promise to "go and sin no more."

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957, Justice Dept. accepted

One of the biggest drawbacks to this technique is that the injured competitors of monopoly practices are left holding the sack. The anti trust laws provide that an injured party can sue for triple damages, and that in establishing the right to damages, may use as proof a judgment won by the government.

But in a consent decree settlement, this remedy is denied the injured competitors, because the law as it stands now, does not permit consent decrees to be entered as proof of guilt.

This practice is perhaps something akin to what would happen if someone drove at high speed through a stop sign and in doing so inflicted lifelong crippling injuries on an innocent party that was in the intersection. Then, if this reckless driver could make a deal with authorities whereby he would admit he was in the wrong, but any further proceedings were quashed on his promise not to do it any more, which in turn would prevent the injured party from suing for damages, there would be a somewhat parallel situation.

The nation's independent businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business men, have long requested more teeth being put into enforcement of anti trust laws.

Actually, if someone is driven into bankruptcy by illegal, monopolistic practices, his finances are not helped in the least by guilty promising to reform.

Thus, while under the anti trust laws it is as much of a crime to conspire to drive out competitors through illegal means as it is to rob this till, there is always on scene enough high priced legal talent to throw up all manner of smoke screens based on legal theories.

Yet the anti trust laws themselves are quite clear and plain the way they are written, in most instances, and probably much plainer than many other laws on the books.

Justice Dept. defends the consent decree procedure as one that saves the government a lot of time and expense.

But undoubtedly, many legal actions could be settled with an even greater savings in time and money if the defendant knew that to go scot free he only had to promise to do better.

In all the high flown phraseology thrown about on the subject, one thing seems to escape the attention of the theorists.

The anti trust laws are the law of the land as much as those prohibiting treason, murder, or robbery. As such, they are entitled to same enforcement.

Watch on the Potomac

THE LADY FROM PHILADELPHIA—Like millions of others I rarely go to the movies any more. Aside from good reading, my principal medium of entertainment is television.

So far as television is concerned I am an "expert" only in the sense that I look at it every day, sometimes for just a half-hour show, other times a little longer when something special is coming up. I don't feel compulsive about it. I don't have to have television. I don't turn on the dial automatically.

There are certain programs that I like. I don't bother to convince anyone else that they are also what everyone else ought to like. It's all a matter of taste. Among my favorites, on the light side, are "You Bet Your Life" with Groucho Marx and "You'll Never Get Rich" with Phil Silvers portraying the Army's con man, Sgt. Bilko.

In the way of news programs I find the Chet Huntley-David Brinkley show over NBC a competent evening round-up. Eric Sevareid of CBS and Edward P. Morgan of ABC—both on radio but not on television very often—do the best daily news analysis, in my opinion.

On the whole, though, the critics complain that television has become dreary and I am inclined to agree that the 1957 bill of fare was meager—until the night before the year's end. Then wow, pow, bam!

EDWARD R. MURROW and CBS, under the sponsorship of the International Telephone and Telegraph Co., outdid themselves. Ordinarily I wouldn't be touching on a television show in this column, but I gather from my friends that not very many people saw it.

It was a one-hour show called "The Lady From Philadelphia." The lady turned out to be Marian Anderson. It was a picture chronicle of her recent tour of Southeast Asia, Burma, Thailand and India. The photography was superb.

But it was more than just good photography. This kind, gentle, strong woman turned out to be a Voice of America, not just as an excellent contralto, but also for the words she spoke. They, too, sang.

Miss Anderson has a detached, almost out-of-this-world, manner of speaking. "One does what one can," she says quietly. Or: "One speaks in one's own medium."

After you've seen this show you can overlook a lot in TV. And I wonder if the sponsors and CBS—and, of course, Miss Anderson—have not done more for America than a hundred satellites or a thousand ICBMs will ever be able to do?

Your Congressman . . .

Sensitive Legislators Try To Aid All Constituents

By Edgar W. Hiestand, Rep. 21st District

With the 1958 session underway, this seems an appropriate time to explain how Congress functions and to knock out some misconceptions of it.

First I should point out that Congress is extremely sensitive to public opinion. All letters from constituents are read and evaluated thoroughly. If it is possible to carry out requests, all congressmen are eager to do it.

Last year's economy drive, for instance, resulted directly from pressure applied by constituents. This year the public is demanding that America take action to overcome the Russians in scientific achievements, and a program of this nature will undoubtedly be one of Congress' first 1958 actions.

OFTEN REQUESTS are simple, such as for copies of bills, government publications or similar information readily obtainable. Sometimes, however, the requests require painstaking work involving several government agencies along with the congressman's office. Such situations where a congressman can help might include visa applications, immigration red tape, pension problems, service discharges or social security cases.

Many letters to a congressman solicit his support or opposition to bills or proposals which are before Congress. Often the writer may ask his representative to vote "yes" or "no" on a bill not yet in final form. For example, the constituent may oppose foreign aid to one country and favor it for another. His congressman may have to vote either to give aid to both countries or to neither.

Occasionally an individual or group may make a request which necessitates the passage of a new law. A congressman just begins to answer this request when he introduces a bill, for it is extremely difficult to get a measure approved by Congress and signed into law. Of 14,013 measures introduced in 1957, only 637 were enacted into law, and less than half of those enacted were public laws.

SOME PEOPLE believe that when a congressman introduces a bill it is considered automatically. This is far from true. Consideration depends upon the attitude of the chairman of the committee to which the bill is referred. The chairman can kill the bill merely by refusing to grant it a hearing. Or he can call it up immediately.

A chairman obtains his position by being the senior member of the majority party on the committee. Through this it becomes obvious that seniority is one of the most important considerations in Congress. The longer a man serves, the more important he becomes to his congressional district because he can accomplish more.

In the 85th Congress, 21 of the 34 standing committee chairmen come from Southern states, because Democrats from those states have served the longest in Washington.

Most of the important work of Congress is done in committee. There are 19 standing committees in the House and 15 in the Senate. There are also more than 100 subcommittees, which deal with only one aspect of a full committee's work. Besides these there are special committees, which are temporary and perform a specific task, and joint committees, which are permanent groups composed of both House and Senate members and deal with a particular matter such as atomic energy.

BROADLY speaking, there are three kinds of hearings by congressional committees: (1) hearings to find out all about a subject before passing a law on it; (2) hearings to find out how laws made by Congress are being carried out by the executive branch of government; (3) hearings to look into some situation involving Congress itself or the conduct of any of its members.

Congressmen rely on constituents to guide, but not necessarily to determine, their votes on bills. A congressman naturally cannot poll his constituency on every issue, nor can he expect those at home to be as well informed on many issues as he is. But he knows that unless he follows the general thinking of those at home, he will be replaced at the next election.

Taormina Rivals Capri In Beauty and Fame

By Edward Lloyd Voorhees

Founded about 350 B.C. by Greeks, and with a native population today of less than 5,000, Taormina has long been a world-famous international resort.

It rivals Capri in both beauty and fame, and during "the season," from January through April, it is frequented by the nobility, royalty, artists, intelligentsia, plutocracy and tourists from all the continents, though in considerably fewer numbers than is Capri.

The town is a series of terraces rising along the hairpin loops of the motor road from the railway station (Giardini, meaning "gardens") up more than 500 feet of a spur of Monte Tauro (Mountain of the Bull), the road bordered above and below by magnificent stone villas, half-hidden in gardens of tall cypresses, olive, mimosa, flowering shrubs, fountains and statuary.

IT ALL faces, on the east, 400 miles of blue Ionian sea towards its motherland, Greece, while its silver and blue Sicilian shoreline stretches northward to melt into the horizon along the Straits of Messina at the Italian mainland. In the opposite direction, Taormina's skyline is dominated drastically by Europe's mightiest volcano, Mt. Etna, its showy, smoking cone of various craters (over 200, small and larger!) rising to an impressive height of 10,700 feet above nearby sea-level, and less than 20 miles away, by air, from Taormina.

The town's series of terraces, threaded by irregular, narrow streets, is bisected, half way through the town, and parallel to the seashore below, by the main thoroughfare of shops, cafes, churches and town houses. Generally referred to as "Il Corso," the rest of its name may change to honor the existing political regime—on my map, however, it is still "Corso Umberto I." At either end remains an old gateway as entrance through the original walls, now gone, and for collecting imposts on produce, coming or going.

ABOVE the highest street, on a great rock, is the ruin of Taormina's medieval castle, once the refuge for the people from sea pirates and other invaders; and still higher, at 1,475 feet, is another former fortress, Castel Mola, now a ruin, which still guards its silent village of close-packed stone houses, many of whose owners are returned Sicilian immigrants from New York, Brooklyn and other U.S. cities, now able to enjoy their American savings at the more leisurely Sicilian pace, and like small lords of the manor in comparison with their less venturesome, or less able, fellow townsmen.

That day every house was tightly closed against a howling and chilling March blizzard.

EVEN DEMOCRATS would agree that Miss Phyllis Besocke, 891 E. Grand View, is worthy of her latest title—beauty queen of the Pasadena Young Republicans. Miss Besocke was crowned at an inaugural ball Dec. 20 at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles, and will represent the Young Republicans at the State Convention in Berkeley Feb. 15. She previously served on the Board of Directors of the Young Republicans. A free lance designer of novelty items, Miss Besocke was a Wistaria princess in 1953 and rode on the Philco float in the 1952 Rose Parade. She attended Anadolia School and Pasadena City College.

"MISS SHRDLU" (Joan Roberts), left, and "Miss Etacoin" (Kathy Stuart) are assisted by Reaugh Fisher, costumed as Johann Gutenberg, father of the printing industry, in printing a reminder that Printing Week will be observed in Los Angeles and throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii Jan. 12-18. Misses "Shrdlu" and "Etacoin," who perennially reign over Printing Week festivities, are so designated because the letters in their names spell out the most frequently used letters on the linotype keyboard.

MISSION
BELL

INTELLECTUALS in New York have revived an old word which crops up frequently in their social groups.

The word is "epiphany." The word is being revived by way of the writings of the late James Joyce, Irish novelist who wrote "Dublin." A girl in the modern equivalent of a Greenwich Village setting will say, "Oh, I had an epiphany last night." Then, with her companions listening closely, she will tell about some flash of understanding while sitting on a park bench or strolling.

THE EPIPHANY may be a completely new and understanding view of some social, personal or economic problem. Or it may be a sudden understanding of an artistic work. The origin of this word is ecclesiastical. It refers to the revelation of the deity. Thus Jan. 6, or Twelfth-night after the birth of Christ, is known as the Epiphany, marking the beginning of the glorious church season between Christmas and Lent.

EPIPHANY reveals who the Babe of Bethlehem is—the promised Messiah, Son of Man and Son of God, shrouded in flesh but gradually revealing Himself as the Divine in Him bursts forth, climaxing in the burst of the glory of the Transfiguration—"This is My beloved Son . . . in Whom I am well pleased . . . hear ye Him!"

WE ALL CAN experience the joy of having Christ revealed to us as He really is by going to church regularly during Epiphany.

TODAY'S THOUGHT—Freedom of religion does not mean neglect of worship.

Christian Science
Communion Rites

Communion will be celebrated by all the congregations in the Christian Science churches on Sunday. The occasion is one of the regular Communion services held by the churches with the Lesson-Sermon for the day entitled "Sacrament."

David's reverent prayer from the 139th Psalm (23, 24) will be read during the service, "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Attend church regularly.
